

John Chow's trip to Bali, May 2005 Part 8

Visit to Pak Chakra

Pak Chakra is an old spiritual master who is very well known in the Lovina and Singaraja area. He has served the spiritual and psychic needs of the communities there for decades. When I ask taxi drivers about Pak Chakra, they all know who I am talking about. I had also asked my local Balinese guide. He knows Pak Chakra. I had asked Ibu Vera's driver. He also knows Pak Chakra. I asked 2 other Balinese groups, and they also know Pak Chakra. Thus, I gathered he is well known and has a good reputation.

Incidentally, I found out he is related by blood to the Pandji Sakti family line - the famous king of Bali. Therefore, he is related to my late friend Kumara Anak Agung of Melbourne.

Pak Chakra is in his late eighties but still very robust and healthy. He still has excellent alertness and presence of mind. He is very friendly, understanding, and hospitable. He has a smiling face and amiable nature.

He was recommended to me by 2 Balinese friends in Melbourne who specifically urged me to see him on my previous trip to Bali, so, since I was in Lovina, I decided to pay him a visit to check the old master out.

Pak Chakra was very happy to see me. He has a strong voice and he can talk and talk. I gather from his teachings that he is an inspirational speaker who receives his messages directly from the supernatural realms as he is speaking to the person. ie. He is relaying messages from the persons ancestors, personal protectors, guardian angels, or deities and saints of the person's religion. Something like a clairvoyant in the West.

His central teaching to me is that the easiest and fastest way to communicate with God and the divine realms is via one's ancestors. He gave a detailed explanation of this, for which I am very thankful.

Pak Chakra also stressed that all religions are good and lead to the same goal. Their terminologies, founders, masters and teachings are different, but all of them came from the same God. He communicates with all deities equally and he respects them equally. He believes they are all from God and God put them on earth at various places and various times to suit the conditions of people.

He explained that he does not study from books. Things and knowledge come to him naturally. He gave a detailed explanation of how he can tell very accurate things to people who come to him for help.

He told me to enter his holy room to offer incense, and then make my wish, and come out. Then he gave me a blessing. Strangely, the benedictions that he gave me, are exactly some of the main problems that I face in life. This old master is very intuitive. He laughed and said, he does not know about me. It is the deities and my ancestors who told him.

Pak Chakra told me of his blood ancestry, and it include Hindus as well as Muslims rulers in Java and Bali, as well as a few Chinese.

Pak Chakra stressed that all religions should live in peace and respect and participate in one another's activities. His house is 50 metres away from the local mosque. Pak Chakra is familiar with Islam too, and he says that the old prophets and Patriarchs sometimes come to him in his visions.

It was very pleasant to be with him. He is so hospitable. He is like a loving and understanding grandfather figure. It was such an honour to have such an old take so much time and attention on me.

I thank him, and left.

When the Yellow Bamboo teacher training course was ending, I thought I would let the other students know about this wonderful master, and I brought them to see him.

We were welcomed and he asked each person to sign his guest book, and then he proceeded to give them a blessing just like what he gave me. I was one of the translators, so I was very fortunate. I understood all the things he said, and why he said certain things to each of my Yellow bamboo friends, and I think he is very accurate. I was happy I could use my intuition to monitor the whole process.

Thank you, Pak Chakra!

I did not use my camera that day. But some of the other students did. I will try to get photos from them.

John Chow with Pak Chakra. Note the beaming jovial smile on the face of this old venerable spiritual master who is fit, healthy and full of energy while in his 80s. He is worth a visit.
